

burngreave photographic group present...

first sight

an exhibition of images by burngreave based photographers

Photographers are not noted for working together. It's a solitary business like many art forms, but this month Burngreave photographers are collectively putting on an exhibition of their work in Burngreave Cemetery Chapel.

'First Sight' is the first exhibition of the Burngreave Photographic Group which formed in July this year. The group is made up of Burngreave residents ranging from experienced freelance photographers to artists using cameras to people who just like to take pictures. The show promises to be diverse and surprising.

It is hoped 'First Sight' will be the first of many activities for the Group, perhaps including further exhibitions, trips or workshops. If you would like to join come along to the exhibition and leave your contact details or come to a meeting on Tuesday 21st September at Abbeyfield Park House 6.30pm to help plan something for the future. Everyone welcome.

Opening night is Friday 3rd September 7-9pm, and the exhibition will continue on 4th, 5th, 11th and 12th September. There will be live music on Sunday 12th September 12pm-2pm.

Naseh – A life worth living

Naseh Ghafor's lips were unstitched on 20 August, 43 days after he sewed them together and refused food in protest at the failure of his application for asylum. Near to death, he is now accepting small quantities of liquid and it is hoped he will recover from his ordeal.

<http://sheffieldindymedia.org.uk/>
Naseh is a 20 year old Iraqi Kurd who saw his father killed in front of him. His mother and two sisters disappeared, presumed dead. He fled to the UK and arrived in Burngreave along with many other Iraqi Kurds two years ago. He was so convinced that deportation back to Iraq will mean death for him that he was prepared to face death by starvation rather than return to a country where he has no family left.

Although Home Secretary and Brightside MP David Blunkett has assured Naseh that he will not be deported until Iraq is considered to be safe, Naseh and many other Kurdish asylum seekers fear that Iraq will never be safe for Kurds. A speaker from the Kurdish Community Centre explained to a packed meeting of over 100 people in Verdon Street Community Centre that Iraqi Kurds live homeless and in fear after 4,000 of their villages had been destroyed, or given to non-Kurdish supporters of Saddam Hussein's regime. Such people now occupy the farm which belonged to Naseh's father. The organisation Human Rights Watch has warned of tension between returning Kurds and Arab settlers which 'could soon explode into violence.' Other speakers expressed their disgust at David Blunkett's refusal to accept that deportation to Iraq means death to Naseh and many of Sheffield's 2,000 Iraqi Kurds.

The Home Office will provide bed and board to people in Naseh's position, as long as they agree to be deported. Naseh refuses to sign his own deportation order.

Dear Messenger,

It was with horror, disgust and incredulity that I read the article 'Council plan transformation' in the August issue. When will the planning authorities learn that 'demolition and new build' is not the answer to the regeneration of an area?

Sheffield's whole planning history seems to consist of knocking down the last mistake and building a new mistake. Replacing rows of terrace housing with modern ill built and designed housing will only destroy what little is left of the local history and feel for this area. With more foresight renovation should be the way forward, thereby keeping and encouraging the history of the shops and houses. You only have to look at the supposed luxury apartments along the River Don to see how quickly they become shabby and non-descript.

Yes, I definitely agree that work needs to be done to provide quality low cost housing for people, but people don't want to live in a giant featureless council estate.

People are always telling me wonderful stories of how Pitsmoor and Burngreave used to look so please don't let the City destroy any more. Forget about restoration of the Manor Castle, how about restoration of our city.

Secondly, I can't believe that Paul from the Kashmir had to learn about the demolition of his restaurant from the pages of the Messenger. His business is one of Spital Hill's main attractions, feeding not just local people but folk from across the city and beyond. Please treat him and other traders with a little bit of respect.

Yours, Gaby Spinks

Dear Messenger,

Viridor Waste Management, owners and operators of Parkwood Landfill Site, issued a press release which was printed in the Sheffield Star, which says that from 16th July this year hazardous waste will no longer be accepted at Parkwood. Viridor, it says, 'respects the wishes of the local community.' The Parkwood Landfill Action Group are aware that due to the new European directive on landfill sites, hazardous waste can no longer be accepted at Parkwood.

However, we are also aware that the many thousands of tons of hazardous waste accepted at the site over the last 18 years or so, still has the potential to harm human health and the environment. Particularly as huge amounts of hazardous waste known as "soda slag" is currently being dug up and moved from one area to another, in order for engineering work to take place

Staff working on this project are wearing white cover-all protective clothing which has to be destroyed at the end of the day, so surely this hazardous waste which can no longer be accepted at Parkwood, should not be moved around.

We have expressed grave concerns to both the environment Agency and to Dr Jeremy Wight, who is currently conducting a Health Impact Assessment on the possible health effects of the site on local residents.

Members of this group have also expressed concern that our City Council appear to give a very low priority to the Landfill and the problems it imposes on local residents. The Liaison Group, which was established by councillor Jan Wilson in September 2003, has had three very important meetings cancelled since April 2004. Two were due to councillors having other meetings to attend, the last one with only 2 or 3 hours notice.

This is just not good enough!

Yours faithfully
Jean Armstrong (Mrs)
Chair – Parkwood Landfill Action Group

Dear Messenger

Isn't it strange, where a restaurant like the Kashmir isn't given permission for a new sign because of what? It 'detracts from the special architectural and historic interest of the Spital Hill Works.' Give us a break. They didn't think that about the special architectural and historic interests of VESTRY HALL did they? They left that baby to rot while they had some meeting about some statue and got fired at by the press. A few million will be needed to get that one off the ground, hey? They wouldn't have done jack if the £50 million wasn't here. They would have left Burngreave to rot for years.

They don't give a damn about 'detract from the special architectural and historic interest of the Spital Hill Works' but setting through a government idea for a pat on the back for a 'well done job' and a great promotion to another level. Same way when some shirt and tie job did the same mess for the Centre for Popular Music in the City Centre which became what? A rip off and waste of money!

How ridiculous and hypocritical can you get when you don't even allow an entrepreneur, a business man, who employs workers in that area, invests in the community, pays business tax, and whatever comes with setting up a business, to not even allow him to put up a new sign. New Deal for Communities? Are you sure? Or is it, New Deal under arrest, "You got ideas – fill in a form, but we got our own ideas, and they come first."

I hope this rings a resounding message that Business Forums better not be some superficial mirror but a forum for entrepreneurs to have power to lobby the government or you become nothing but puppets, and we're getting sick and tired of puppets. Fight them Hussain all the way! And get involved in the Sheffield Business Forum at the Chamber of Commerce.

Adam Taha

David Blunkett alleged that people supporting Naseh were encouraging asylum seekers who have applications turned down to think they can get round the process through self-harm. This has outraged people like Jean Wood, from Carwood, who has spent many hours at Naseh's bedside. "I didn't know about asylum seekers until recently," Jean told the Verdon Street meeting on 15 August. "I will move heaven and earth to help you all," she added before tears ended her speech.

Naseh's decision to start taking liquids was greeted with relief when it was announced to a demonstration called to support him on 21 August. This followed a series of protests which started on 7 August when supporters blocked Burngreave Road for an hour. On Tuesday 17 August supporters again blocked rush hour traffic on Spital Hill, and on Saturday about 200 people marched from Ellesmere Green through Sheffield town centre to a rally outside the Town Hall.

Leading the protest, Sue Taylor of Sheffield Committee to Defend Asylum Seekers said she thought Naseh's decision to end his hunger strike was due to his realisation of how many people cared about him. She stressed that the campaign is just beginning to prevent the deportation of Naseh and others who face death if they return to Iraq.

Mrs Jean Hayden

It is with very deep regret that we have to announce the death of Jean Hayden who was the Chair of Firshill Tenants' and Residents' Association for many years. Jean died in May following a hard-fought battle against cancer. We know that everyone who knew her will wish to join us in sending condolences to her family.

Jean was involved in Firshill TARA from its very start and she never stopped working for the good of the estate and the people living here – even her illness did not stop her attending meetings which were important to our community or making sure that we were properly represented. She will be greatly missed and not easily replaced – hopefully we will be able to carry on the good work she began to ensure that Firshill keeps its reputation as one of the best estates in Sheffield.

The Association has arranged for a bench, dedicated to Jean's memory, to be placed at Roe Wood Residential Home where she was a frequent visitor when her mother was a resident there.

The Editorial

The story of Naseh Ghafor has distressed many in Burngreave. As fears for his life grew, friends staged a spontaneous road block and his plight took centre stage in our community. Burngreave is somewhere all have been welcomed and real pride is taken in our diversity. Ever since the booming of the steel mills on Carlisle Street people have come here seeking work, fleeing persecution or seeking refuge. Our many hostels and support organisations are a safety net to people from all over the city and the world. The result is a community where it is never safe to make assumptions and where world events directly affect our neighbours.

Horror has greeted the news that our Government, elected with an 'ethical foreign policy', is insisting that such a damaged young man must return to Iraq, but we are relieved that the compassion and support of local people seems to have convinced Naseh it is worth living.

The Burngreave Messenger is a community newspaper, funded by New Deal, with editorial independence. We aim to increase and encourage communication in Burngreave. Each edition is put together by an editorial team who write articles not otherwise credited. # Carwood makes progress

After months of speculation and disruption to the lives of Carwood residents progress has finally been made. To their relief Carwood Mini Market reopened on 1st August and will provide the estate with easy access to everyday essentials.

ASTRA's Jean Wood and BCAF's Steve Cook welcome new shop owner Mr Rafiq.

I went to find out what life had been like living without shopping amenities on the estate. Local resident Gary Cooper explained that it was terrible having to walk up that hill for just a loaf of bread. He had one word to sum up the progress of the new shop: "fantastic". Elaine Costello, landlady of the Halcar Tavern, said the shop was dearly needed and is a great convenience for the community here. "It's about time someone was running it, properly as well."

I spoke to new proprietor, Mr Rafiq, who has lived in Burngreave all his life. He brings his family business experience and a real hope of stability for the shop. "We would like to see the shop becoming a focal point again, alongside the community centre, helping regenerate this area," said Mr Rafiq, adding that as a member of ASTRA he was actively participating in the progress being made around Carwood.

Jean Wood, chair of ASTRA said, "It has been at least three months since we had any shopping facilities. Mr Rafiq has our full support and we wish him all the best of success in the future."

Chair of BCAF Steve Cooke mentioned the help and support they have from the Area Panel, New Deal and BCAT.

"The shop opening under this new management will become a turning point in the future of Carwood."

The shop is now opened daily by assistant manager Robert Dixon who said the new shop was here to stay.

"Two pints and an IT course, please..."

Over the past seven months Burngreave Community Learning Campaign (BCLC) have been running computer courses aimed at adults. "These beginners courses have been running from Firs Hill School and the Halcar Tavern," explained Tony Tingle, of the LEA Adult and Community Learning Unit.

Student Milton Graham receives award from BCLC Learning Assistant Brendan Adams.

Students of the courses had gathered in the Halcar Tavern to celebrate their achievements and to receive awards, including Open College Network Accreditation. There was a buffet laid on by the Halcar Tavern's landlady Elaine Costello who herself began a course in January. She explained that allowing the use of the public house encouraged many others to get involved.

"Many people would rather sit here than in a classroom. The course itself is easy and relaxed, allowing you to choose whatever aspects of modern day computer knowledge you want to know."

Mr Desmond Hasting explained he went on the course because all his children and grandchildren use computers. "I wanted to learn because this helps me relate to my children. I studied at Firs Hill and think it's a brilliant idea. I've learnt a great deal, young man."

Barmaid Katy Costello admitted that before joining she knew very little about computers.

"I began by doing word processing, now I want to learn more and the fact it's held in the pub makes it more relaxed and accessible for those who may not go elsewhere."

Robert Wilson, tutor of ICT (Information Communication Technology) said:

"All the people attending have been eager to learn. The hardest thing to do as an adult is walk through the doors and most people here today have built up confidence and ability to use computers. Many of the learners have even moved on in careers since attending."

I could hear from the people receiving awards that the saying 'its never to late to learn' rings true.

In September there will be further adult courses being held at Firs Hill School and the Halcar Tavern Carwood. For further information on courses in Burngreave contact the Burngreave Community Learning Campaign on 279 4960 or check out the Burngreave Learner which lists all the courses in the area.

Young visions of Burngreave

Young people have always been a top priority for the community. Finding ways for them to be heard and influence what goes on has never been easy but when imaginative ideas are tried the results can be insightful and inspiring.

This page highlights two recent opportunities for young people to express themselves. We think the results are insightful and inspiring and hopefully time will prove them to be influential as well.

The Burngreave After School Study Support Project have recently run a writing competition and here we bring you extracts from the winning entries. The project aims to raise the achievement of Yemeni pupils and is funded by Burngreave New Deal for Communities through the Yemeni Community Association. The project restarts on 6th September for Y10 and Y11. For more information, contact Diane Haimeed on 256 0933.

Creating a community vision

As I look from my bedroom window all I can see is joy riders, deals, drugs and many more. I have seen cars crashing into each other making sounds like Bang! Crash! and Ring Ring! But as the years have gone by the council has begun to build speed bumps, consequently there are fewer crashes.

Also, of the things that I can see now have improved, especially in the last 3-4 years is less violence and that is a good thing. In future, this place will continue to improve because kids, children and even adults can go out and smell the fresh air.

My family is part of this community and they think that violence existed at the start, but as the years went past they all started to get out. The neighbours were scared at the start, but now they are all right. They've started to get to know us and to get together with us, now we visit each other at any time of day.

What I would like to see in the future is to have more facilities, for younger children and even adults, football, tennis, cricket etc. There should be more clubs for younger children so they can organise trips.

Mohammed Kaid, 15 years

My Community Pitsmoor

As I walk around my community I can't help to stop and think about the state it is in. The streets covered with litter like a junk yard. The houses are old looking and are about to collapse. The roads cracked up giving cars a bumpy ride.

What you hear in my community are horrifying sounds of gunshots, sometimes even the shouting of people in trouble. The joy riders riding fast and furiously up and down the streets, contributing to civilian fear to go out of their houses. I would rather listen to the sound of the wind blowing and the birds singing. The sound of children playing, not breaking the law.

The vision that is witnessed by the children just encourages them to forget about their education and attempt an illegal struggle to become the gangster of the block. The drug dealing creates an idea that the only way to make money is to go out and sell drugs.

Some adults are also creating a negative scene by not getting into work and smoking on the streets next to the children and showing them the wrong path through life. They should be out there working, not showing children bad acts, they are at the stage where they start to make life decisions and that is interfered by what they see the older ones do.

Ways the government could make my community a better place is by making sure children are attending school; build youth clubs to give children something to put them off criminal acts; the big drug dealers to be stopped so the teenagers don't get that easy choice. Finally police it a bit more to make the criminals be more fearful.

Hussain Husain, 15 years

"I would like more festival."

36 young people would like more youth clubs/trips/activities, fun, music and dance.

Young people also had the opportunity to post comments on the Sheffield Futures graffiti board at the recent Abbeyfield Multicultural Festival. Here are just a few of their ideas.

"Spital Hill done up good and fast."

21 young people would like more green, open space with flowers and cleaner streets/less graffiti.

"Cash point, cleaner streets, more police."

16 young people would like more security cameras and more policing of the streets.

Burngreave Area Panel

Helping to Clean Up Burngreave

The Burngreave Area Panel is working with Street Force to help make sure our streets are kept clean and tidy. We regularly walk around the area with officers to point out problems and help come up with solutions. Here are just a few of the things that happened as a result of our last walkabout in June:

- An intensive clean up of the Fir Vale Road/Goddard Hall Road area on 28th June, unblocking drains and sweeping up silt, litter and tree debris from roads and pavements. (Thanks to every one who helped out buy moving their cars!)
- New litterbins ordered for outside Firs Hill School and by the bus stop on Barnsley Road/Osgathorpe Road.

- Fly tipping removed from various sites around the area.
- Street cleaning schedules changed to make sure problem areas are cleaned and checked more regularly.
- A general clean up of silt that had collected in gutters and around traffic islands across the whole area

If there are any areas you would like us to look at on our next walkabout please let us know by contacting your area action team at the address below. Alternatively you can report problems direct to Street Force by calling 273 4567.

Miners strike remembered

It's 20 years since the year-long Miners' Strike began. It started as a battle to save pits and miners' jobs; it soon became all-out war between the Conservative Thatcher government and the National Union of Mineworkers (NUM). The strike changed lives and politics in Britain.

© Carl Rose

I went to talk to John Wesley, now landlord of The Rock pub and an ex-miner. We sat in the bottom room surrounded by his china plates, pictures and tokens commemorating the strike.

"It gets people talking about it – it brings it back to the fore," he explained and welcomed more customers adding their own memorabilia. Pride of place goes to a plate from Manton Colliery, near Worksop. "I worked at Manton and there were 187 of us, out of 700, on strike for a year. We had a tough time." With 100,000 miners on strike, a minority, particularly in Nottinghamshire, continued to work, helped into the pits by a massive police presence.

"The police were shocking. They used to just walk past and spit at us. There were 3,000 police at one point in Manton village, and a lot of them were army in police uniforms."

"I went out picketing all the time to Notts... twice a day

Could the strike have won? "We didn't get enough support from the labour movement. Well not the movement, but Kinnock (Labour Party leader in 1984). They said they supported us, but..." Instead, John travelled around the country raising money for the strike, explaining the miners were fighting for all trade unionists, not just their own jobs.

In March 1985 the miners went back to work. "You had to swallow it," remembers John. But he's unrepentant about their cause: "A lot of people still say we were wrong. Well I say, there's no pits now – look what it's done. A lot of industry has collapsed now because of it... if the miners had won we'd have a lot more power now. People see that now."

Translating road safety

After residents raised concerns in the August issue about road safety on Ellesmere Road, I spoke to driving instructor Abdul Majeed Najib on the topic.

© Carl Rose

"The government are doing quite well promoting road safety," Abdul told me, "but they do a lot in national papers and don't do that much in local areas. It's driving instructors like me that need to make people aware."

Abdul also pointed out that a lot of road safety information tends to be in English, which is often not the main language of the many nationalities living in Burngreave. "I speak lots of different languages so I often translate for my students. Driving theory does come in different languages, but often my students still need me to guide them through it." Abdul called for more leaflets and road safety information to be aimed at a wider spectrum of people, recognising the multicultural nature of our community.

Although, as Abdul points out: "A good thing about the area is that is has speedbumps." Ellesmere Road residents reminded us in our last issue that not all areas do and besides, they are not always enough. "There are lots of schools in Burngreave, and lots of traffic. Drivers need to be more aware of what's going on around them, especially where children are playing." Abdul added.

"The key to being a good driver is good observation and planning. They have to anticipate the actions of pedestrians and other drivers, instead of waiting until the last minute."

It's not only drivers who need more road safety advice though. Children also need to be more aware. As Abdul told me: "A lot of kids don't use the road crossings properly." So perhaps it's time for an update to the old 'Stop, Look and Listen' motto to make kids pay attention again.

Abdul works under the company name of AMN School of Motoring and can be contacted on 0779 902 3873.

Education News

Adult learning

The Burngreave Community Language Campaign (BCLC) has just appointed a second round of 18 Community Learning Assistants. BCLC works with education, employment and training organisations in the area to raise the level of adult qualifications held by people in Burngreave and increase their ability to find and remain in employment. This involves a unique twin track approach:

- BCLC employs 18 local people every two years from Burngreave to be learning assistants and improve their skills, achieve level 2/3 qualifications and prepare them for higher education or employment.
- Through outreach workers and learning assistants, the campaign signposts, recruits and supports learners at entry level 2 until they qualify and subsequently find employment.

If you want to get involved in adult education and training please contact the Burngreave Community Learning Campaign at Forum House, 35 Spital Hill or phone 279 4960.

A New Deal for Burngreave

Redevelopments given

Hundreds of Burngreave residents took time out at the recent Abbeyfield Festival to look at the design options for the redevelopment of Sorby House, Vestry Hall and the public realm.

A lot of really positive feedback was received from local people which will allow detailed designs to be made on the options that proved to be the most popular.

Further consultation with local people will take place once these detailed designs have been developed.

The preferred options were:

Sorby House
Option one which includes transforming the external view of the building and significantly upgrading the interior to incorporate a range of new services while maintaining the existing building structure.

A vehicle to be proud of!

Burngreave residents can look forward to seeing the BNDfC Community Information Vehicle out and about in the area as the official handover of the bus has taken place.

With excitement about the arrival of the bus growing and bookings already made, members of the BNDfC Community Engagement Team happily accepted the keys from Vipex – the company who made it.

The multi-purpose vehicle will be used as a display vehicle for BNDfC community events and for use by the local community and voluntary groups at little or no cost. It will attend events such as festivals or crime and health information days and be used for outreach work with young people. It also comes fully equipped with a stage area.

Ignored no more

Following our article 'Woods Campaigner Tired of Being Ignored' in the August issue, about Peter Mappin's struggles with the Council over the state of Little Roe Woods, the Council have finally cleared the dumped material and erected a barrier to keep fly-tippers out.

Peter Mappin told us he was pleased the Council had finally taken notice of his concerns was happy with the results. Nick Sellwood, Woodlands Manager sent us the following response.

Little Roe Woods is managed by the Trees and Woodlands Team, part of the Council's Parks Woodlands and Countryside Service. Prior to 2000, none of the main entrances were secure and there was frequent dumping of cars and fly-tipping. In 2000 all the access points were secured with gates and pedestrian squeezes. We have worked with local people and schools to raise awareness of the site, promote its positive use and discourage anti-social behaviour.

A large amount of fly-tipping has been removed over the last few years and we endeavour to remove material as soon as possible. During 2004 six instructions were issued to Street Force, and our cleansing team to remove dumped material. All the material shown in the article has been removed.

However a track alongside Little Roe Wood has continued to be used for dumping. It belongs to Sheffield Homes, adjoins land held by Social Services and acts as an access for Sheaf Training. We have been working in partnership with these bodies and the Firshill TARA to resolve the issue since early Spring.

"I am pleased to say the access track is being secured with a gate, pedestrian squeeze and fencing, and work should be completed by early August." – Nick Sellwood

The main pond has been de-silted twice in the last five years, but has now refilled. We are working with the Burngreave Ranger and Greenwatch Project Teams to help restore it in a way that will reduce the build up. This work is planned for autumn when wildlife is less active.

We very much appreciate people reporting problems or concerns. Contact the Parks Woodlands and Countryside Service on 250 0500. Incidents of fly-tipping can be reported to Street Force on 273 4567.

Pride in new plaza

Business partners Nigel Ramsey and Chris Gordon.

Based at 64 to 68a Spital Hill, the Spital Hill Plaza & Function Room project has already attracted interest from a large section of our community's small enterprises. A florist, fish market, clothing sales, barber and beauty salon, blending with a charity shop while above that sits a large function room. These things are already earmarked for Burngreave's first shopping plaza.

"Today the finishing touches are being made to complete a seven-year dream," explained Mr Nigel Ramsey, owner of Spiritual Wines and a man I began to see not only as an entrepreneur but possible future community champion. Nigel has been developing the enterprise with business partner Chris Gordon, but the hands-on work has been a real team effort. Nigel wanted to thank the many people who've helped make this project happen, "especially my family, a special thanks to our personal electrician Eva, who wired the whole building, and all the members of our community who worked work hard free of charge."

Restoration Charity Shop

Meeting some of those taking up units inside the plaza I was greeted warmly by Pastor Joy Muzumala, a member of Restoration Family Ministries. Their shop will bid to raise funds for those less privileged in this community and around the world.

"Our organisation originated in Africa and has many churches in the poor districts of South Africa, Zambia and Zimbabwe," explained Joy, appealing to those more fortunate, with clothes, toys or other items to donate, to contact the shop on 243 9981.

"I believe this joint African and Caribbean retail plaza is a brilliant idea that must benefit a community changing for the better. I hope all our people will take responsibility and pride in this new enterprise and its leadership."

The Dance School

Ballet, tap and dance will take place up stairs in the function room for both male and females of all ages and abilities. Dance teacher, Laura Windle, used to dance and teach at Margaret Harding's Dance School that was once situated above Keith Laycock's.

"Limbering up will be the main classes, teaching everyone to concentrate on stretching. This will be in preparation for moving onto other classes or just want to tone up their body."

Other classes will include street dancing, traditional tap and freestyle. Pupils will be encouraged to take part in training, competitions and shows. To enrol children or to be involved in dance teaching or performance speak to Laura on 0776 694 2150.

Black Dragons Martial Arts

The Black Dragons martial arts group was established back in the 1980s by Denton Wilson and Tony Sinclair. "The Black Dragons are a force to be reckoned with," laughed Tony. "As you know this entails working with local youths and we are looking to re-establish self defence, keep fit and self discipline. We will be training upstairs in the Plaza function rooms twice a week and this is open to everybody." Tony also added how nice it is to see local black people putting positive things back into the community.

Mombassa Fisheries

Zuleo Matthias and Saidi Msigiti are happy to be back in the heart of our community. "We have been in Castle Market and Park Hill," explained Saidi. "People from Burngreave have followed and supported us where ever we've been," added Zuleo. "Now we are back Burngreave we will continue to be fish specialists."

Mombassa imports fresh frozen fish from tropical islands and others from oceans and seas all over the world.

"We will also be a Halal butchery selling chicken, fresh meat and goat, fruit and vegetables, plantain, yam, sweet potato and okra," adds Saidi, "and we are doing a free delivery service taking phone orders, gutting fish, cleaning meat and de-scaling all fish purchases."

For further information call 275 4408.

Burngreave Cup

The football season is back with us and not least in Burngreave. Nine teams battled it out over two weekends at the prestigious Sheffield United Hallam FM Academy, The African Dream Team, Boyz In the Reggae, Kurdish Town United, Sheffield

Browlers, Red United, Spectrum Stars, Samba Milan, Nacro All Stars, and the Sickness Crew all taking part in the Burngreave Cup 2004.

Last year's victors the African Dream Team were this year put into the shade by the stylish Samba Milan, who beat them in the final 1-0. Sheffield Browlers and Nacro Allstars also rating highly in the leagues.

All the matches were played with enthusiasm and aggression, match officials kept games under control and the physio ensured safety throughout the tournament.

Hopefully we will be able to realise a Burngreave team in the near future consisting of players from these exiting young teams.

Children's Festival of Sport

The Lord Mayor opened the Children's Festival of Sport on Saturday, 21st August. Presented by the Burngreave New Deal, BCAT, and Firshill Tenants and residents association the day brought together members of the community young and old, and everyone was catered for.

The event was in support of the world firefighter games, the fire brigade contributing with many activities including the crowd impressing chip pan fire display.

Amongst the many sporting activities was former world boxing champion Paul 'Silky' Jones and the 'Skippercise', with one of the many interactive games for the children. Including craft and jumble stalls and a display by the Firshill History Society, this really was a great day out for everyone. The New Deal information vehicle once again provided the music and was the stage for the prize presentations.
