

Burngreave Cup

The rain might have been bouncing down, but nobody cared about being forced into the SUFC Academy's indoor facilities. The BNDfC bus was pumping a blend of dance, hip hop, reggae, and eastern beats into the arena and the event kicked off into its familiar festival flavour.

Eleven teams began the tournament, some familiar from last year; Sheffield Prowlers, Dream Team, Spectrum Stars, Nacro, and also many new contenders; Algerian Fox, Chesterfield, Soldiers of Allah, Yemen Utd, Galeed Giants, United Nations and Somaliland. On 13th August the challenge went on for league positions. The final on 20th August was contested between Yemeni Utd and Nacro. United had most of the play throughout, but Nacro defended well and the game concluded as a 0-0 draw. So tournament was to be decided on penalties with Nacro pronounced Burgreave Cup Winners for 2005.

Organised by BSN and BCAT, with funding from BNDfC this tournament deserves a much bigger audience. The enthusiasm and atmosphere created by the multicultural mix of players taking part, make it unfortunate that more people don't get the chance to see what is taking place.

Spital Hill road closures

Spital Hill is to close for traffic flowing into the city centre from 4th September for twelve months.

The closure is due to the construction of a new retaining wall and road junction on Spital Hill. Traffic flowing into the city centre will now have to divert onto Gower Street, Sutherland Street, Attercliffe Road, Savile Street and then onto the Wicker.

However, traffic will still flow one-way from the city centre and will be open to pedestrians.

Lee Tinkle, Project Manager at Birse, contractors for the project said: "The closure and diversion is a recent change to plans due to technical reasons. We don't expect an increase in traffic or congestion due to the diversion."

The changes are due to the development of the ring road which will run past the bottom of Spital Hill towards Brunswick Road joining another link road that will run across the Wicker from the Parkway. The new trunk road will then run past the Riverside Exchange development and towards Penistone Road.

A spokesperson for Birse said: "The purpose of the new link road is to improve traffic flow, reduce congestion and reduce traffic flow into the city centre".

However, locals from Spital Hill see the developments as good news if you're a motorist but not so good if you're a resident or pedestrian. They complained that the new road will be unpleasant as it will create more traffic and congestion. For pedestrians the new link road may also act as a barrier and cut off Burngreave from the city centre. Ahmed Gurnah, of the Bungereave Community Learning Campaign, based at Forum House said:

"Although Burngreave is less than a mile from the city centre it already feels isolated and this scheme may increase that feeling."

Dear Messenger

I am sure you are aware that since the boundary changes, the whole of Shirecliffe is now part of the Burngreave Ward. Over the past six years you have published articles which are pertinent and of great interest to the residents of the whole of Shirecliffe. For example, June’s issue concerning the helicopter site, the Keepmoat builder’s compound and Parkwood Landfill!

Incidentally, the ‘Welcome to Shirecliffe’ sign is located in the wrong place. It should be just before the helicopter site, and a complaint to this effect has been lodged with the Area Panel.

The true purpose of my letter is to request that the whole of Shirecliffe is circulated and a copy of your excellent newsheet is delivered to each dwelling, or a copy upon request, and of course I am requesting one please!

Yours sincerely, G Sewerin

Unfortunately the Messenger doesn’t have enough funding to deliver to Shirecliffe. However we will continue to report on stories that affect the area and we have arranged to give twenty copies to the Shirecliffe TARA every month. We can also leave copies in other public places, such as shops. To suggest a place for us to deliver to, contact the Messenger on 242 0564.

Dear Messenger

It was with interest that I read your recent article on the criteria for property improvements in Pitsmoor. My house is situated at the top of Pitsmoor Road, close to the traffic lights, shops, post office, pubs and businesses, enjoying a regular bus service and the benefits of main road pollution, passing foot traffic and general noise and disruption throughout the 24 hour period.

Despite these factors, our area, which must be all of a mile long and accommodating a large number of houses in a variety of states of disrepair, windows out and roofs collapsing, has never been selected for upgrade or improvement.

Pitsmoor Road ticks all of the developer’s boxes – it’s on a bus route, from 0500 to 2300 the 47/48 service passes our door, no money has previously been invested. Improvements are all around us, including Firshill Road/Burnwood, which last saw a car when the choice of colours was limited to black!

Oddly enough, houses further up, which face onto Barnsley Road, and do not have cars, other than for parking, have also been improved. Is there something that you are not telling us about Pitsmoor Road?

I have tried on a number of occasions to get a definitive answer about our fate, but all I get are platitudes and the ever present excuse that no money has been allocated ‘this year’. Having heard this old chestnut since 1986, I am extremely worried about the Council’s finances!

If I sound grumpy, then I am. I pay my taxes like a good ‘un, work hard to keep my house in order, and get brassed off when I get excuse after excuse. Pitsmoor Road is the gateway to town, you all use it in some form, and it’s about time that we got a better deal along this little area of Old Sheffield.

With thanks, JC of Pitsmoor Road

Dear Messenger

After three years delivering mail in the Rutland Road and surrounding district I have ‘warmed’ to the area and the people, although it hasn’t been without some unusual experiences.

Within the first month of starting work in the area, I noticed several prostitutes. This was something I had never encountered before and one of them would accost me as I went about my deliveries. However some of the older ones were quite amicable and conducted themselves in a ‘respectable’ way. They seemed to disappear as time went on. One woman I saw told me that she no longer engaged in the business at all, not I imagine through a guilt or conscience but rather that she simply ‘retired’ from it.

Another experience I had was early on Tuesday morning (the mail is always light on Tuesdays) walking down Rising Street into Fox Street, I was confronted by armed marksmen. I left by the way I had come in response to the frantic waving of one of the men to make myself scarce. The following day I found out nothing had actually happened, but the armed unit had to be there as the man they subsequently arrested had a gun.

As to my favourite part of the delivery, it certainly isn’t the Nottingham Cliffe, Andover Street, Pye Bank Road (what’s left of it!) area, although there are a number of friendly people who live there who offer me refreshments from time to time.

I like Wood Fold, which is a quaint, almost out-of-the-way, little lane that leads down from Rutland Road onto Pitsmoor Road. One then encounters a few fine old houses that have stood the test of time admirably.

There are all kinds of people who live in the area, such as doctors, musicians, translators and all manner of other distinguished professions, to the extent that the area is on a par with any other respectable area in the city. Would I want to live here? Yes, I probably would, judging by what I have observed on a daily basis, although my period of scrutiny is always by force of circumstance confined to the mornings and so I cannot account for what occurs in the afternoon and evenings.

I would be happy to keep on delivering here until I retire, which won’t be for quite a while yet. Hopefully, my length of service will be a good bargaining tool in staying put in any subsequent reselection of duties. But that cannot be for certain. Perhaps the duty itself will be dissolved, as happened to my previous one. Who knows? I hope not to finish up too far away.

Cricket winners

The Sheffield Federation for School Sports’ Raynor Trophy was won by Firs Hill Community School on 21st July, playing against Parson Cross Primary. A resounding win of 88 runs to 15.

Twenty schools from across the city took part in the league. Firs Hill reached the finals by beating Abbeydale Primary in the semi-finals.

Coaches Mrs Hussain and Mr Rasool said, “It was an outstanding performance by all of the team.” The whole team get voted ‘men of the tournament’, and Dhanyal Safier (Y4) and Hamzah Younis (Y5) received the accolade of ‘men of the match’ for the finals.

New Deal get tough

A £1.3 million environment project has been rejected by New Deal after months of negotiation between Sheffield Wildlife Trust, Sheffield City Council and local group Green City Action.

The organisations were part of the Burngreave Green Environment Project (BGEP) phase 1, which ended in March 2005, spending about £1.3 million since October 2002. Concerns were raised that phase 1 didn’t deliver enough real improvements, and phase 2 was intended to focus on practical work for Burngreave’s green spaces.

However New Deal rejected the proposal for phase 2 saying it didn’t provide value for money, and that money was being requested to fund existing posts which would hope to secure a further £1.2 million match funding to actually do the work.

New Deal now intend to tender out the work, alongside a project delivered by Green City Action. A member of the BGEP steering group expressed concern this would lead to further delays and an unco-ordinated approach.

The decision reflects a growing trend in New Deal. In July Burngreave Community Action Trust lost the Grants Scheme and in August Pitsmoor Somali Youth Project had their funding withdrawn. In both cases New Deal would only say this was due to concerns about management and delivery.

Sorby House and Vestry Hall

The year long £4 million New Deal project to refurbish Sorby House, due to start this month has been delayed until October. Delays are in part due to failed negotiations with Ladbroke’s who want to stay in the building and are unwilling to leave during the renovations, which will add costs to the project.

Sorby House is intended to be community and commercial office space and the £3.1 million Vestry Hall project, which is due to start at the end of October, is set to create a learning centre. Neither buildings have completed business plans yet and a member of the Vestry Hall Steering Group expressed concern to the Messenger that they had not met since April or been able to see the draft business plan.

The Editorial

Just say no

Local politics can be challenging and rewarding, but it can be hard. Two of our local councillors sit on the Planning Board which will soon have to decide whether to give Viridor the go ahead to dump more ‘active waste’ into Parkwood (see page 8)

Parkwood is part of the largest green space in Sheffield, close to the city centre and our homes. It has Burngreave caught in a toxic sandwich between the landfill and the hugh incinerator being built on the other side of the hill. Of course waste has to go somewhere, but we could recycle more. Latest figures (2003–4) show Sheffield is in the bottom quarter of authorities, recycling only 12% of the city’s waste.

Councillors always have to balance the interests of different groups and organisations, local, city-wide and national issues, but they are also elected to represent us. Residents have been campaigning for years, saying Parkwood isn’t the place for active waste. The Messenger joins their calls on our councillors to ‘just say no’ to even more of the stuff.

Burngreave Area Panel

What's happening to Burngreave children?

The biggest spend of the Council in Burngreave is on education. It is one area of provision that can have life-changing effects. In July the Area Panel councillors assembled information about the educational progress of local children. So what does the data tell us?

There are more school age children living in Burngreave in 2005 than there were in 2002. Fewer of the children are white; more are of black/minority ethnic heritage. Children move in and out of Burngreave, but white children move more often than black/minority children. The educational ability of children staying in Burngreave at age 11 was slightly higher than those children who moved.

5 The teachers' assessments of children at age 5 (the foundation stage) are quite low, and for black/minority children it's lower than for black/minority children in the city. This could reflect the nature of pre-school provision in the past for young children; will SureStart and voluntary provision start to alter this?

7 At age 7, Burngreave pupils have lower attainment than elsewhere in the city. Most worryingly, the trend until 2004 was widening between Burngreave and the rest of the city. However, there is some evidence that black/minority ethnic children are improving at this age; last year, their results were better than white children's results.

11 By the age of 11, the evidence seems to be quite different. The gap between local children's performance and the rest of the city is narrowing. Burngreave pupils of Pakistani heritage have better results than their peers in Darnall or Sharrow. The girls are more successful than boys, and this difference is similar in Burngreave to that of the rest of the city.

As children move to secondary schools, more are choosing local schools. Since 2003 over half of all children from the four local junior schools have gone to Fir Vale. Parkwood has traditionally been the catchment school for Pye Bank and now has increasing numbers of pupils from other local primaries.

14 Students are assessed half way through secondary school. The results in Burngreave still lag behind the rest of the city, but again the gap is narrowing. Black/minority ethnic girls are doing much better than boys; the 'gap' in performance between white girls and boys is much less than for Asian, African and African-Caribbean/dual heritage students.

16 By 16, the gap between girls and boys is even greater. However, Burngreave performance is much more similar to the rest of the city than at any earlier age. And the trend over the last three years is for continuing progress. Black/minority ethnic students – especially girls – performed much better than their peers in Darnall or Sharrow. White students' performance fluctuates from year to year; minority ethnic achievement appears to be strengthening. Interestingly, the student support programmes in Burngreave have traditionally been open to minority ethnic students.

Of real interest is that last year, the GCSE results of Burngreave students educated in schools on the other side of town were no better than the results of students who attended the local secondaries. There should be more information from this year's results to see if this is consolidated.

A-level results in 2004 were lower for both white and minority ethnic students. This might reflect the fact that students attending Sheffield College have entered for fewer exams than those attending the 6th forms on the other side of town. It will be good to know how Longley Park 6th Form College might alter this.

Statistics can illustrate what's happened, but they can't explain why. So the second stage of this process is to test out why things are happening and how improvements can be made; I'll report back on this later in the year.

Gullies

The Head of Streetforce has said that all road side grids and drains in the New Deal area of Burngreave will have been cleaned by 12th August. Particular grids on Barnsley Road have also been cleaned.

Parking

Finally, Parking Services staff have put well over 1,000 leaflets on cars parked unlawfully in both Burngreave and Fir Vale areas. There has only been one dispute to date. Leafleting will stop, and enforcement action will start in September. What do yellow lines mean? Can you park on pavements? If you're parking, make sure you know the answers!

Developers anger Grimesthorpe residents

Local residents on Grimesthorpe Road are expressing concern over plans to build two blocks of five-storey flats at the top of Smithies Field.

The developers, Redwall, have already begun to clear the site, although they don't have planning permission to begin construction.

© Carl Rose

Concerns about their actions were brought to the Messenger's attention by Pete Hunt (pictured right), who owns two houses next to where the flats are planned and has lived there for 23 years.

"I used to have a drive that gave me access to the land at back of my house. This has now been fenced off by the developers."

Letters sent to Mr Hunt from the developer's solicitors deny that there is a public right of way through that part of the land and have informed Pete that he has just 14 days to sort out any access issues. After this date he will no longer have access to back of his property through the site.

Since work started in July, a path that is used by the public on Grimesthorpe Road to access the fields that lead onto Carwood has been blocked by the developers.

Whilst there I witnessed a group of bewildered looking walkers stumbling over a mound of rubble that has since replaced the path. Looking at the collection of burnt trees, rubble and waste it is hard to believe that just three weeks ago it was densely filled with trees and plants.

Alan Bullock, Pete's next door neighbour comments on how sad it is to see the place demolished:

"The developers have just been cavalier in their whole approach, their planning application said they would leave major trees, but they seemed to be clearing as much as possible. There has been wholesale destruction of the wildlife habitat for no real reason – this area has been home to song thrushes and sky larks; we often see bats."

Alan hopes the Council will think twice before granting planning permission for the flats:

"Residents are planning to object to the proposals, mainly because five-storey blocks are completely inappropriate, they're just too tall. Some of the flats they are planning are tiny, 26 square metres are the smallest, which is no bigger than a large living room. They are trying to sell the idea that they are low-cost starter homes, but £50k is not cheap for something of that size."

Another Grimesthorpe Road resident, Philip Ward, told us:

"The developers own all the land at the top of Smithies Field, but they have only put in an application to build on 90 metres of about a 350 metre stretch, and yet they are clearing the whole site. They seem to be trying to bounce the Council into a decision when the rest of the site comes up for planning permission, by clearing it and environmentally degrading it now."

by Carl Rose

Redwall clear the site

Following an urgent phone to the Messenger on 17th August, I went to Grimesthorpe Road to find Redwall in the process of clearing the entire site.

On the road I ran into Reg Drabble, a local resident, who was very concerned about the work being done and what residents are being told.

He had been told all current works were to be carried out further up Grimesthorpe Road and the site near to Carwood wouldn't be touched for three years. However, while we were speaking, Thomas Higginbottom, the site supervisor for Redwall, admitted to Mr Drabble that wasn't the truth.

I asked Mr Higginbottom if he realised local residents were unhappy about the clearance and would he consider stopping. He said he knew residents weren't happy because his digger had been sabotaged, but Redwall owned the site and they were entitled to do what they liked with it. "We own it," he said, "we are clearing away this eyesore and reducing health and safety risks, the site is full of rubbish and dead animals."

I asked him whether they intended to put in further planning applications for building at which point he declined to continue the interview and answer any more questions. Reg then told him to expect a lot of opposition from local people.

by Gaby Spinks

Residents have been given until 30th August to register objections. However comments are accepted right up until the application is considered by the planning board, a date for this is not confirmed.

Alice Ingham – A Life in Pitsmoor

In the fast and hectic pace of the 21st century, most of us will move house, change neighbourhoods, jobs and even schools several times during our lifetimes. Alice Ingham, a Pitsmoor resident for almost ninety years, has a very different story to tell. Not only has she lived almost all her life on the same street in Pitsmoor, but she went to only one school and worked for only one firm. Not many of us can boast of such a strong connection to one place.

Alice was born in 1916 into a terraced house on Fox Street, her parents having moved there as soon as they were married. She was the oldest of three children and they grew up together playing on the street or further down the hill in a big field “with a castle on top”.

Between the ages of five and fourteen, Alice went to the local school at Pye Bank. “There was only the one school at that time but just after I left, a new school, Burngreave Secondary Modern, opened and my brother and sister went there. But I didn’t have that chance.” Instead she was sent by the Labour Exchange to work at the Bachelor’s factory behind the Wicker. That was the beginning of a long stint of over 40 years, interrupted only by the Second World War.

“I started on piece work, going through sacks of dried peas and picking out the bad ones. You were paid by the weight of the discarded ones but you had to earn eight shillings’ worth each week, otherwise they took it off next week’s wages! And it was a ten-hour shift each day, although I did manage to get home for lunch,” said Alice. “By the time I was 21, I had become a supervisor and then Bachelor’s started a canning factory at Wadsley Bridge. So I moved on to work there, still for the same firm, mind you.”

Then came the war years, interrupting both her home life and her job. “During the Blitz, our house was damaged in a bombing raid. We were about to sit down to meat and potato pie for our tea one night when the sirens sounded and we had to go into the shelter in the garden. When we came out the following morning, everything was still on the tea table but covered in soot. But there were plenty around us who had been killed in the bombing.” The family moved over to Gleadless temporarily, coming back a few months later to a house a few doors up on the same street. During this time Alice had not been able to get to work but, as soon as she was back in Pitsmoor, she resumed her working routine for another thirty years. “After fifteen years’ service, I got a gold watch and after forty, they gave me a bedroom suite. Even now that I’m a pensioner, they send me vouchers for Christmas and my birthday. They were good to me!”

At almost ninety, Alice is still deeply attached to Pitsmoor. When asked why she had never moved away, she said, “It’s always been quiet and clean here, people are friendly and you can walk to town. I’ve never wanted to leave.”

Burngreave Voices: Our Stories Celebrated Got any treasures?

Not of the expensive variety but things you value because they bring back memories or have special meaning for you? It could be an old photograph, something a loved one gave you or even an object you found. Burngreave Voices is planning to hold an exhibition to show how people’s treasures are enormously varied and interesting.

If you would be willing to have your photograph taken with your treasured object, please contact Nikky Wilson on 276 1900 or call into Burngreave Library.

A New Deal for Burngreave

Spreading the WWWord...

BNDfC is encouraging local people to surf the net with the launch of its new look website.

At the last public meeting held on Ellesmere Green at the end of May, BNDfC gave local people the chance to have a look and try it out for themselves.

Here, we give you a bit of detail about how the website was put together, what it offers and why www.bndfc.co.uk should be your home page!

Eloise Clarke, BNDfC Communications Officer, said:

“The website is a source of information for the Burngreave community and not just a promotional item for BNDfC. The site is now up and running proving to be a vital resource for the local community but the website construction is only one year into its two year project life.

“We are now busy training all of the people who will add content to the site to ensure it is kept up-to-date and can continue to be maintained long after the life of New Deal. Each project that is funded by BNDfC will have a page within the website.”

Taking charge of designing the website was Jamie Marriot from the Messenger. As he explains it has been a really interesting project to work on. Says Jamie:

“The priority throughout was to encourage the Burngreave community to get involved.

“To do this we have developed an events section where local people can fill in a form with details of an event they are holding and submit it to be posted on the website. Similarly, we have a directory where businesses and organisations can put their details on the site.

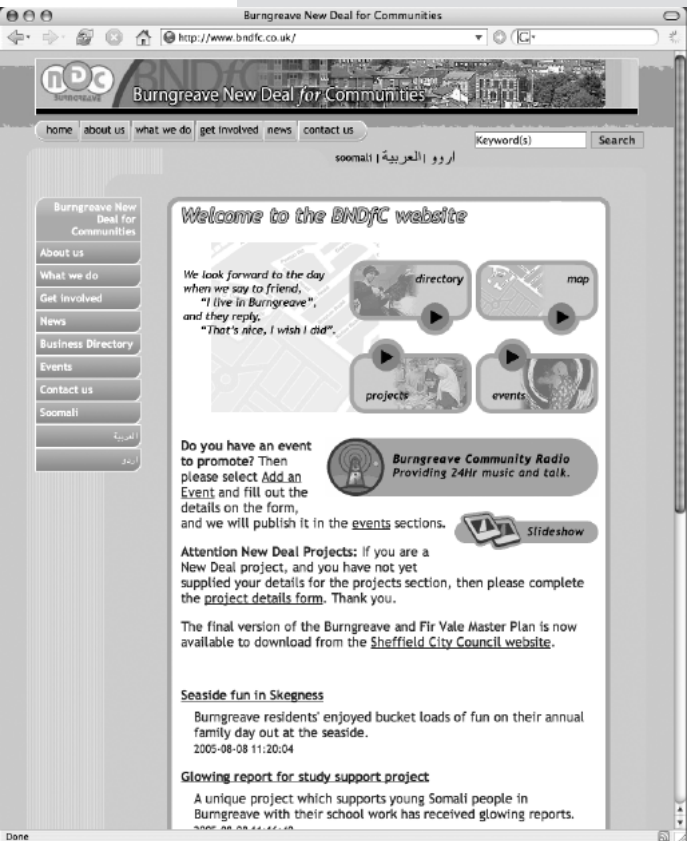

“A message board also allows people to post their views on any topic they wish. For people who want to find out more about BNDfC, they can download all the minutes from board meeting and theme meetings so there are a whole host of ways to play an active role in your community!”

Ian Clifford, BNDfC’s Overarching theme manager, said:

“BNDfC have purchased a content management system which allows people who aren’t website experts to put stuff on. BNDfC staff, and now people from projects, are being trained to upload content onto the site – I’ve even had a go myself!

“The site is also in Somali, Urdu and Arabic, so users of those languages can put content in these languages onto the site. In addition, while many more flashy websites aren’t accessible by blind users, the BNDfC site is fully compliant with all the protocols for use by blind and disabled users but that’s not to say that we haven’t got some flashy interactive stuff on our website too – check it out!”

If you don’t have access to a computer don’t forget to call into the BNDfC Information Shop on Spital Hill where there are computers available for your use.

DIY Masterplanning

Spital Hill and Woodside were again under discussion at a community conference on 28th July at Shiloh Church.

Two new project groups are being set up, one to work on the new housing proposals for Catherine Street/Woodside and one for Spital Hill. Local people who live or work in the area can join the groups. People voiced concerns that the Council wouldn't take any notice of what these groups said. Councillor Jackie Drayton said they would be taken very seriously; they would be chaired by a Councillor and report directly to the Area Panel. However she did admit that ultimate decision making powers would still rest with the Council Cabinet.

Supermarket search

The Council is doing a physical feasibility study on sites around Spital Hill, including the Ellesmere old people's home site. They are going to talk to supermarket chains and carry out independent market testing. Current thinking is the supermarket will be around 12–16,000ft<sup>2</sup> – this compares with the Infirmary Road Tesco (45,000ft<sup>2</sup>), the average Morrisons (70,000ft<sup>2</sup>), Netto or Aldi (20,000ft<sup>2</sup>).

A local shopkeeper asked about the Hartnells site on Saville Street; where there is current planning permission for a 20,000ft<sup>2</sup> supermarket. The planners are looking into this, but think that the site owner has no real plans to build and is only trying to increase the value of his site. While this is going on shopkeepers and businesses on Spital Hill are left in limbo, a number said outside developers were hassling them to sell and that the former betting shop had recently sold at auction for £175,000. All seemed agreed that a decision on a supermarket needed to happen fast. The Council promised to report back to the next Spital Hill project group meeting in September.

Chance for local shoppers

These groups are only going to be successful if local residents attend and make their views felt. There was a distinct shortage of residents at the meeting. The Spital Hill proposals look like they will be decided by the two most vocal groups of people present at the meeting; the all-male owners of the businesses, whose views will be reasonably clouded by personal financial issues; and the serious environmentalists who think all supermarkets are bad things that harm the environment. Local people need to come to these meetings and say what sort of shopping centre they would use.

To do this for the Spital Hill Project Group, contact Rob Slow on 261 7216 or rob.slow@sheffield.gov.uk and for the Burngreave Housing Project Group contact Caroline Stiff on 261 7216 or caroline.stiff@sheffield.gov.uk.

Fir Vale Masterplan

Fir Vale residents met with councillors on 26th July to initiate the project groups that will help shape the future of the area. There were notably less people than at previous meetings.

The Page Hall area will set up a project group, which will work with the Area Panel on plans to feed back to the Cabinet. Over the next 9–12 months a bid will be put together for the funds to regenerate the area. This is likely to involve mostly refurbishments and identifying areas for change at the house and street levels.

Groups will also be set up for the Skinnerthorpe and Earl Marshall areas to implement the plans already decided. There were dismayed residents from Skinnerthorpe who were not happy with the demolition planned for their area.

Trust was not always evident in the meeting; there were those who continued to press the panel for more information and insisted that not all was being revealed. But my feeling is we have to put some trust in this process as it's not going away and we will have to work together at some point.

The first meetings for the groups will be in September. To join contact 261 7216.

Iraqi Kurds

Iraqi Kurds in Sheffield are facing renewed fears of deportation. Stories of sudden arrest and removal have been spreading through the Kurdish community as the Government has started to round up and detain 'failed' asylum seekers at Heathrow.

The government has already declared its intention to deport thousands of Iraqi Kurds, saying that Kurdish areas of Iraq are now 'safe', but a spokesperson from a meeting in Burngreave told us they are alone in this view:

“The United Nations High Commission for Refugees says ‘no part of Iraq can be considered safe’ and this is a view shared by Amnesty International, the European Union and even the present ‘government’ in Iraq. Even the UK Foreign Office strongly advises against Britons travelling to Iraq because... it's too dangerous. Indeed, the presence of around 200,000 US and UK troops in Iraq indicates that the actual situation is far from safe.”

The meeting of Kurdish and non-Kurdish supporters launched a campaign to oppose the detention of Iraqi Kurds at Heathrow their deportations and the removal of rights to food and shelter. Supporters said:

“We urge all Burngreave residents to stand with our Kurdish brothers and sisters. We will do our utmost to publicise their desperate situation and defend their right to live here.”

If you would like to help the campaign contact 0770 426 6613 (Kurdish) or 0791 370 1740 (English).

A 'Companionable' Night

Friday 29th July, the Friends of Burngreave Cemetery and Chapel held a fundraising Blues Night at the Companions Club on Barnsley Road.

Playing were local bands Green Onions and The Robin Hoare Band. Guest stars were local stone basher Farne Errington who provided the 'rock-ing beat', and Sarah Starbuck on guitar.

Secretary of the Friends group, Christine Steers said:

“We were really pleased, a fantastic effort and an enjoyable evening. We raised £150 and now we are looking forward to the next one on 3rd December. Thanks to Cassie Limb and Robin Hoare for organising the event.”

Partnership Board Meeting – Wednesday, 27 July 2005

What was discussed

Burngreave green environment project (phase 2)

Three proposals to continue the work undertaken on parks and green spaces.

Supporting business Project (phase2)

Continuing to support and develop the Burngreave Business Forum and extend the project to provide grants and training for local people to start a new enterprise.

Sorby House

The proposal for Sorby House to be developed as a Resource Centre providing Community/Commercial facilities in light of recent discussions about the location of a supermarket in the area through the Burngreave and Firvale Masterplanning process.

What we decided

Not to approve the project in the sum of £1.3m but to commission individual pieces of work on the parks in the area. Also to work with the local provider Green City Action to improve neighbourhood green spaces in collaboration with local residents.

To approve the project in the sum of £375,315 subject to an independent evaluation being completed by December 2005.

The Partnership Board remain committed to the current proposal for Sorby House which arose out of consultation with the local community and it is crucial that this flagship development goes ahead within the timescales identified.

Decision time for Parkwood landfill

Plans to tip more active waste at Parkwood landfill are worth an estimated £34 million to site operators Viridor. They have now submitted the long-awaited planning application and local residents are intensifying their campaign against it.

At present the site is divided into four cells. Viridor have planning permission to tip active waste (the kind that rots) in three cells. Permission for the fourth (Area D in the application), on land leased from Sheffield City Council, covers only the tipping of inert waste.

In the application lodged on 21 July Viridor estimates that 'rephasing' of the site – tipping active waste on Area D – will reduce the life of the site by eight to nine years. This is because active waste is more readily available than inert waste. Without this change, it would take another twenty years to fill Area D. When the site is full, it will be restored as public open space.

Viridor also propose to transfer inert material from Area D so as to create a 50 metre buffer zone between the Standish estate which borders the north-east area of the site. At present active waste can be tipped just five metres from the recently-built houses.

"The objective... of the application... is to reduce the impact on local residents of the development," Viridor claim. Restoration of the site to public use would begin nearest the houses and continue in stages towards the south-west where Area D lies.

Paul Antcliffe of Parkwood Concerned Tenants, Residents and Businesses Group, which opposes the application, points out that there is no reason why Viridor should not install the buffer zone and carry out the staged restoration under the existing planning consent. He argues that these benefits are being offered to win local residents over to support the new plan.

Objectors argue that what Viridor calls unavailable. Viridor have admitted it is difficult to obtain it. Assuming a generous 10% of this is for site operating costs, that would mean that the income from Area D over its life would be £9 million.

The cost of tipping active waste is currently about £30 per tonne (not including tax). Allowing 10% for operating costs, Area D would generate a total income after deduction of costs of £27 million. But the cost of tipping active waste is forecast to rise sharply, to as much as £66 per tonne by 2011. Taking a figure halfway between these two of £48 per tonne gives a total income after costs of over £43 million. The difference between that figure and the £9 million that would be generated by inert waste would be £34 million – the estimated value to Viridor of this planning application.

Viridor Waste Management Ltd is part of the Pennon Group plc which has assets of £2.7 billion. Contact: Dan Cooke, External Affairs Manager, (01823) 721400.

Although the formal deadline for comments about this planning application is given in a letter to local residents as 24 August, the planning department has assured the Messenger that all comments received after that date will be taken into consideration. Comments should be sent to Development Services, Howden House, 1 Union Street, Sheffield S1 2SH, or email planningdc@sheffield.gov.uk, quoting reference 05/02877/ful.

“The doctor will see you now...”

As we reported last month, survey results showed some people in Burngreave were having difficulties getting to see their GP. We spoke to the local surgeries and some recognised the problem and have been spending time re-organising their systems and introducing new services.

Pitsmoor Surgery recognised that some patients were finding it harder to book appointments and have spent a lot of time over the last three months trying to improve the situation.

All the surgeries should always arrange appropriate treatment or advice when you contact them, even if you don't have an appointment. If you contact any of the surgeries outside working hours your call will be forwarded to an 'out of hours' services who deal with emergencies. You can also get advice about health problems and how to use the NHS from the NHS Direct helpline 0845 4647 or website, www.nhsdirect.nhs.uk/.

Anyone who is 'ordinarily resident' in the UK has a right to register with a GP and to get treatment from the surgery, including immediately necessary treatment in an emergency. Surgeries can refuse to register people, but if they do, they must give you 'reasonable grounds' in writing. If you're having difficulty registering with a GP you can contact the North Sheffield Primary Care Trust (NSPCT) on 226 4031 and they must find you a GP. All the local GPs told the Messenger they were open for new patients at the moment.

Andy Buck, Chief Executive of the NSPCT told us he was heartened to hear the same survey showed people had a lot of trust in local GPs and hospitals and the PCT viewed the surgeries in Burngreave as being high quality. "It's pleasing that three-quarters of people found access to GPs fairly or very easy and all the surgeries are working hard and meeting the national targets, ensuring people can be seen at short notice or by booking in advance."

by Mark Lankshear

Local surgeries

All the surgeries encourage people to book appointments by phone and most keep some aside for urgent 'same day' problems. Several of them run systems for phone consultations and now offer a variety of alternatives to seeing a GP, like nurse practitioners or health care assistants. Surgeries all produce a 'Practice Leaflet' explaining details of their services that you can pick up from their reception.

El-Nisah women's group

Over 80 women attended El-Nisah women's group Health Day in June.

The event was to raise the health awareness of those who have language difficulties; to give them a chance to discuss any kind of issues in confidence, with an interpreter if needed. The women enjoyed the stalls and workshops, which were available from the Children's Information Centre, the NHS, who provided blood pressure tests and New Deal health support workers who provided information on cervical screening. There were speakers on the day providing Arabic language support, helping women understand different aspects of health-related issues.

Cultural celebration

On 4th June a performance was brought together by the El-Nisah women's group, Burngreave After School Study Support Project and the Yemeni Community Association at the Library Theatre.

The performance took the audience on a journey through the real-life experiences a young girl adapting to the move from Yemen to the UK with her mother and sister, to join their father who had been working in the Sheffield steel industry for over 17 years.

The people who took part in the event were all females ranging from the age of 10–30 years old. Everyone had been rehearsing very hard for months before and enjoyed taking part. The only disappointment was the poor attendance by agencies. Many felt insulted by this and some remarked they would not attend events organised by those agencies who were invited.

Firshill in bloom

Firshill Neighbourhood Watch ran a ‘Firshill in bloom’ gardening competition and judging was completed last week. The two judges, Martyn Parker from the horticultural department of Sheaf Training, and Christopher Bull from SUFC Academy groundstaff, were impressed by the effort local gardeners had made.

The overall winner was Mrs Betty Bower of Firshill Crescent, for her garden’s variety of colour and her obvious hard work.

The winner in the small garden category was Mr Ben Keddey, also of Firshill Crescent, and the best balcony was agreed to be that of Mrs M Fisher of Firshill Rise.

The Neighbourhood Watch would like to thank everyone who entered and hope more people will enter next year. Prizes will be awarded at Roe Lane Community Centre on 10th October at 6.30pm.

Finally, a shelter from the elements

Abbeyfield Park finally has the shelter that it’s been trying to get put up for over a year.

The project has been dogged with problems – the unexpected need for planning permission for both the structure and the heritage status wall, has resulted in spiralling costs. But it’s here now. The major building work was done by the Green Watch and Burngreave Rangers with help from local young people and paid for by Green Watch Rangers, Burngreave Green Environment Programme, Friends of Abbeyfield Park and Green City Action. All that stands in the way of completion is a £600 bill to rebuild parts of the heritage wall at the sides – everyone hopes the Council will cough up.

Well done to Henk Littlewood for persisting with the project.

Urban Music

The Cactus Club hosted three nights of urban music, rap and break dancing in August. The events were organised by Urban Music, who started out of a desire for all types of street music to have a positive influence on youngsters.

There are quite a few courses young people can attend, but no facility for them to expand their practice. Who better to find a possible solution than a youngster? Bhavesh Patel, 17-year-old promoter for Urban Music, has arranged the three events – the general feedback was simply ‘more, more, more!’

Edward Oggleston, manager of Urban Music, was keen to emphasise that he and Bhavesh are equal directors. He said: “Bhavesh has the potential to be a community leader within Burngreave”.

Urban Music is presently at foundation stage but the ultimate goal is to lift the profile of Burngreave as it has a lot going for it. They want to allow young people to develop their skills within the music industry. Its priority is to put on regular events so people can come out and enjoy themselves. When asked what is the future for Urban Music the reply was, “Change children’s role models in order to clean up Burngreave”.

The event was supported by Red Tape Studios, Burngreave Community Action Trust and Burngreave New Deal for Communities.

Dressed for success

Triggered by the recent discovery of an ancient well shaft, the art of well dressing has arrived in Burngreave. The Friends of Burngreave Cemetery, helped by Firshill Afterschool Arts Club, created a display from petals and flower heads on a puddled clay board, which celebrated water, the source of life.

The well shaft suddenly appeared in January and is older than the cemetery itself, dating back to the time when the area was still Burngreave Wood, used as a source of charcoal for smelting iron. Maps of the time show the woods cut through with footpaths joining small mining works, wells and bell pits.

Well dressing is a tradition unique to Derbyshire and the Peak District and, although shrouded in mystery, is thought to have its origins in Celtic rituals, “Saying thank you for the water, worshipping the water goddess sort of thing,” Saleema Imam explained, one of the team who had spent the previous evening creating the dressing.

Lord Mayor Roger Davison launched the event, praising the superb example of this ancient art, and the way local children had been involved. Albert Jackson, local historian, took the group on a tour of some of the many historic graves and the final resting places of famous Sheffielders before the morning ended at an exhibition in the increasingly busy chapel.

The Friends of Burngreave Cemetery run regular events in the chapel and hope they will be able to raise the funds needed to restore both the chapels and the well to form a feature to be celebrated for years to come. They were keen to acknowledge the support they’d received from Bereavement Services and from Burngreave Voices.
